

A Time to Pray

Every Friday the staff, residents, volunteers and guests gather in Chapelito at 12:00 noon (Pacific time) to pray for the world. Please join us wherever you are. Even if it is only a few minutes that you can give, turn your thoughts to God and our Lord Christ. Visualize Their Light of Transcendence entering the world in greater ways with receptive hearts to receive Them.

Remembering the Day Our Heart Stopped— A Bereavement Retreat

Questhaven is pleased to host Dr. Karen P. Palmer on April 29-30, 2011, for this special healing weekend.

Inspiration

For the Mystical Journey with Christ
March 2011

Every sincere Christian is occupied with an unending endeavor of wielding constructive attitudes and beliefs. Over and over again the emphasis of Christ's teachings is that of "only believe." We are not to believe vaguely, halfheartedly, or blindly, but singlemindedly in the activity of the Good.

Dear Friends and Spiritual Family,

It is difficult to listen to the news today and not feel the unrest in the world—even here in America. It is times like these that often challenge the very essence of our faith. Flower has said, "Faith is active, purposeful thought centered upon God's ability to change and perfect all conditions of life." Do we truly believe this is possible?

I find that most often it is my mind that limits God. But I have found amazing outcomes when I have learned to just trust in the creative answer, which comes from Divinity. This answer is often unexpected. My mind could not conceive of it, but upon reflection, it always seems to be the right Divine solution for the situation. This requires me to let go of my preconceptions and accept what God has in store—rather a surrender of my will over to the Divine Presence.

I was pondering this the other day when I found myself making excuses for why someone might not be able to help in an area that was needed for the ministry. "Oh, they are so busy." —or— "They were rather challenging to work with in the past, maybe it would be better to do it myself." Wait! Why was I limiting what they can be now in God?
Why was I limiting myself? Then the thought came:

By excluding others, I find that they stay just the way I think they are.

By including others, I find God has a very different ideal in store for each of us.

We mustn't limit what we and others can be in God.

Christ taught that "Faith without works is dead." We must learn to work with faith to realize it is not only something to have, but it is something that needs to be flowing through us—in our thoughts, decisions and living. We must not only be observers of faith but active participants in the whole experience of faith's transformation.

This is why we are taking faith as our theme for our Lenten journey toward Easter. Each Sunday service will be devoted to some aspect of deepening our understanding and expression of faith. Even our Lenten classes will have individuals sharing of faith's transcendent influence upon them. To help us on these nights, we are going to take as our focus the symbol of the seven-pointed star.
Each point of the star represents what our radiation should be in relation to our goal of mastery. It summarizes in one image what we need for balanced unfoldment. It is also the symbol of God within us. The Great Ones tell us this star rests in a trilogy of overflowing powers.

As our beloved Christ said to His disciples, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God." Eager to start the search, they asked, "Where is the Kingdom?" He replied, "The Kingdom of God is within you."

Happy adventuring in the land of faith! As a Great One once said, "I leave you now in the keeping of that blazing Light in which no shadow exists."

Your Brother in Christ,
Reverend Blake Isaac

With increased awareness of the Divine Potential within, we become possessors of an unshakable faith in the actual Presence of God in the center of our beings. We awaken to the glorious realization that God's Love, Wisdom, Faith, and Power are available to us at all times because His Kingdom is within us.
