Ways Into God's Presence

by Flower A. Newhouse

Christians hear much about the use of silence, meditation and prayer. Each of these designations has a definite role and accomplishes a purpose not found in the others.

The practice of silence is a very important art. We enter the boundary of the Eternal Threshold and pause thoughtfully at its entrance to gaze upon, examine and consider the inner territory into which we have been admitted by the questing of our higher selves. As we enter the threshold of silence:

1. We condition ourselves for spiritual reception.
2. We stand receptively in God's Light.
3. We enter a higher state of being.

In order that we may experience peace and communion in silence, it is needful that we quiet our thoughts, feelings and energies. All disunity must be surrendered and all negative states released. Next, we condition ourselves for God's Presence. We think and feel the qualities of love, joy and expectancy and let these reverberate throughout our natures.

The consciousness and body have been quieted. Now they are brought into a condition of positive attention. As we give direct attention to the surrounding Light of God, we step into a higher state of being. We are accelerated and lifted by our Soul's ability to worship the Divine wholeheartedly. As our surface interests are replaced by our total being's activation, the chakras (the seven vital centers of our super-physical bodies) begin to spin with more rapid and colorful velocity.
